

Imagine shrinking Texas’s community college population (665,565 students) to a village of 100 people, and yet maintaining the same ratios with regard to demographics and student types. In this village of 100 people ...

- _____ would be enrolled full-time
- _____ would be enrolled part-time
- _____ would be enrolled in dual credit
- _____ would be former foster youth
- _____ would be economically disadvantaged
- _____ would be 25 years old or older
- _____ would be student parents
- _____ would be enrolled in an academic program
- _____ would be enrolled in a technical program
- _____ entered college intending to transfer
- _____ would transfer to a four-year institution
- _____ would earn a certification below the certificate level (ICLC or OSA)
- _____ believe they will attain their academic goal in two years
- _____ will actually attain their academic goal (within 6 years)
- _____ believe their college coursework provides skills needed for their desired career
- _____ would be working more than 40 hours a week
- _____ would experience food insecurity, housing insecurity, and homelessness
- _____ would have difficulty coming up with $500 in case of an emergency
- _____ would not know how they will pay for college next semester
- _____ would have experienced depression within the last 2 weeks

Data Sources: Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board Accountability System, Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board FY24 Funding Model, Center for Community College Student Engagement, Trellis Strategies