Professional Development Through Professional Associations

Donna C. McDaniel, Ph.D.

Vice President of Instruction/CAO Texarkana College

President of TCCIA

Objectives

To study the ways and means by which Community College instructional programs and their administration may be improved.

To facilitate mutual cooperation in the development and promotion of effective instructional programs.

To promote effective instructional leadership through collaboration with other professional organizations.

To collaborate on issues of common interest and to enhance mutual trust and understanding through professional development activities.

Objectives

To provide leadership in developing articulation agreements among educational institutions.

To provide leadership in developing partnerships among educational institutions, business, and industry to enhance the delivery of instruction.

To promote effective teaching and learning.

To support the Texas Association of Community Colleges' legislative priorities through research and conference program activities.

Benefits

- Networking with other instructional colleagues
- Provide cross-college support
- Discuss Statewide policy and practice issues
- Training opportunities for instructional administrators
- Sharing of best practices among instructional practitioners
- Teambuilding within your own team
- Ideas and support for the Pathways work
- Ideas and support for the fulfillment of 60x30TX

My Goal

I am president of TCCIA this year and we are working very hard to engage more instructional leaders in relevant and much needed conversations on the challenges of community college education. Your role in creating interest in our conference would be much appreciated. As leaders, it is important for us to share with others our successes; but, as you know to stay on top, we much continue to grow and learn.
